MRS. ELIZABETH CLAYPOOL LINDER SEEKS A DIVORCE.

A Couple Well Known in Society Circles-Makes Serious Charges Against Her Husband.

In Room 1, Superior Court, Elizabeth C. Linder yesterday began an action for absolute divorce from William Linder. The complaint was framed and filed by attorneys Kealing & Hugg and Lewis C. Walker, who will represent Mrs. Linder in the suit for a separation from her husband. Both parties to the action are well known socially in this city, the plaintiff being the daughter of Solomon Claypool, one of the oldest of Indianapolis attorneys. The defendant is bookkeeper and member of the firm of Baldwin, Miller & Co., wholesale fewelers at No. 17 South Meridian street. Mrs. Linder is but twenty-one years, while her husband is two years her senior. Since the marriage of the couple on April 27, 1892, they have occupied a cottage at No. 1042 North Illinois street. From the burden of the complaint filed by Mrs. Linder's attorneys it appears that her domestic unalso a little damaged - "smoked happiness began a few days after she become the wife of the defendant. The accusations made by the young wife portray a sorrowful story of domestic misery. The charge is .nade by Mrs. Linder that she has been the victim of cruel and inhuman treatment since the beginning of her married life. Mr. Linder is boldly accused of having grossly neglected his marriage vows, and his name is coupled with that of Lulu Ward, the keeper of a resort at No. 168 West Pearl street. On the night of Aug. 22, the complaint avers, he was arrested at the home of the Ward woman and sent to the police station. He was able to furnish bond for his appearance in the Police Court, and immediately after his release, it is charged, he returned to the house where he had been arrested and remained there during the night. The complaint is made that for a year the defendant repeatedly violated his marital vows, but the plaintiff shows that she was inaware of his habits until recently. When she reproached him for his conduct she says he boasted of his relations with other women before her marriage to him, and on one occasion when she remonstrated with him he struck her with his hand. Mrs. Linder avers that for a long period her husband has been spending money lavishly upon women of the town and while she at his urgent request, exercised the greatest economy. The statement is made that wife was in the main cruel and coarse. At times he spoke and wrote to her expressions of love and affection, but these periods were rare, it is claimed. From time to time he made promises of reforma-tion, and the plaintiff, hoping that he might change his life and attitude toward her, and loathing divorcement, shows that she onvinced that a betterment of her condition was hopeless. The charge of intoxication is also brought against the defend-ant. While on their wedding tour, Mrs. Linder alleges, her husband twice came home in a state of intoxication. On one of these occasions, shortly after their marriage, he informed her, she claims, that his former life had been of a loose character and expressed regret that he had married. At another time, when he was reproached by his wife, she says he re-

"If you don't like it you know the reme-dy," meaning to say: "If you don't like it you can separate and get a divorce." In her application for divorce Mrs. Linder makes no stipulation as to the amount of alimony demanded, but asks for a reasonable settlement. The couple have no chil-

Mr. Linder bears a good reputation in business circles and is popular among those who know him. At the time he reached his majority he is said to have inherited $80,000, of which legacy he had received no previous intimation, his parent desiring to thoroughly teach him the lesson of self-dependence. His friends deny that he has been guilty of the vicious habits attributed to him and openly charge that he was made the victim of a private detective, who trailed him con-stantly and returned exaggerated reports to the family of his wife. Rev. Joseph R. Jenckes, stepfather of William Linder, was seen at his home last night and told of the suit for divorce filed against his son. He said: "We have been expecting such an action but have nothing to say about it. We do not care to fight the case in the newspapers. THE WESTERN WRITERS.

Meeting of the Executive Committee-Mr. Fishback's Coleridge Papers.

The executive committee of the Western Association of Writers met, yesterday afternoon, at the Denison Hotel parlors. There was a large attendance and a very satisfactory meeting. The future policy of the association was mapped out and the location of the place of meeting for next year was considered, but not determined. A committee was appointed to report at the next meeting. A programme committee was appointed and provision is being made to have the next annual meeting better than any that has yet been held. There than any that has yet been held. There were present at the meeting: A. W. Butler president, Ida May Davis secretary, Will Cumback chairman of executive committee, Dr. J. C. Ridpath, Hon. B. S. Parker, Hon. W. P. Fishback, Dr. Cunningham, G. S. Cottman, Mrs. Juliet V. Straus, Mrs. E. M. McCrea, J. C. Ochiltree, Judge T. B. Redding and Judge G. B. Cardwill. Among other business transacted the fol-

MRS. M'DONALD'S CASE

ARGUMENT ON HER APPEAL HEARD BY THE SUPREME COURT.

Evidence of Secretary Caldwell as to the Signature of the Famous Will Reviewed.

The McDonald will case was argued orally in the Supreme Court yesterday morning before less than a dozen spectators. A. C. Harris spoke for the appellant, Mrs. McDonald, and among other

"The great turning point in the case was as to whether forgery had been committed. An important witness concerning the signatures of Senator McDonald was his pri vate secretary-Mr. Caldwell. He testified that the signature on the probated will was a forgery because the letters in the name McDonald were connected. When we produced checks and a note bearing Sena-tor McDonald's signature, Caldwell admitted that they were genuine. One of these signatures was written connectedly. Then I asked Caldwell if, with his present knowledge, he believed that the genuine signature of Mr. McDonald was sometimes written with the letters connected. He answered yes and the Court ruled the reply from the record. This testimony of Caldwell was the most potent. "Another important error was made reference to the evidence of John M. Bu ler, for many years Senator McDonald's law partner. Attorneys for the plaintiff sought to introduce evidence from Mr. Butler concerning two conversations he had held with Mrs. McDonald, one before and the other after her husband's death. The testimony of Mr. Butler was out of place because proof of a lost will had not been established. And he had no right to state on the witness stand what Mrs. McDonald had said to him confidentially in his capacity as a lawyer. We claimed that the talks were privileged conversations. The court ruled that he would first hear the evidence of Mr. Butler in order to decide what portions of the conversations were privileged. There never was a more flagrant violation of the rules of evidence in any court. What protection is any client to have if a court like that in Hamilton county will permit the confidences between lawyer and client to be made public?" Ferd Winter followed Mr. Harris in an argument for the appellees during which he said the latter's brief was full of the most slanderous charges against the trial court. These Mr. Winter denied in total saying there never was a fairer trial granted than that which Judge Stephens held in this will case. "As for the charge that our case was based upon inconsistent grounds, forgery and over-persuasion," continued Mr. Winter, "there is nothing in the Indiana law which compels a will case to be based upon consistent allegations. A special statute provides thus. The statute allows some advantages to the injured party. Suppose a plaintiff were required to know in advance precisely the evidence that would be given in a case, and suppose that he were compelled to base his case upon the single claim which the evidence would support, what a premium this would put upon fraud! The law gives the plaintiff in a will case the right to name various grounds, although inconsistent; and if any is proven the case is won." The argument was concluded before the expiration of the time prescribed for it by

AMPHITHEATER PACKED AGAIN. Apparently No End to the Popularity of Pompeti.

Last night was Odd Fellows' night at the 'Last Days of Pompell," and the amphitheater was crowded. All the seats were taken and the crowd was estimated at about seven thousand. The programme was the same as has been given on each night, with the special features of the fireworks displaying the emblems of the Odd Fellows' order. These special features were produced with the artistic effect that has all along characterized the production and were received with appreciation. Most of the visitors seemed to be from out of the city. This fact was taken by the management as showing the interest felt in the production throughout the State, and as an evidence that the attendance during the remainder of the week may be expected to be equal to if not greater than that of last night. The cheap rates given on the railroads, with the extensive advertising that has been given the production and the State fair, are serving to bring good crowds. The street car service was again all that could be expected, and the crowds that poured forth from the grounds after the performance was closed were carried away without inconvenience. All of the cars coming down were well filled, and it took more than an hour to land all of the spectators at Washington street.

To-night the Niagara Falls in fire will be reproduced. This is done at the urgent request of a number of citizens. When this piece was given last week it was so highly appreciated that the management was urged, and consented, to reproduce it this week when the visitors to the fair from out of the city might have an opportunity to witness it But Two More Performances.

There will be but two more performances of "Pompeil" at Lincoln Park, to-night and to-morrow night, and these will be the last opportunities citizens and visitors to the State fair will have of seeing this beautiful spectacle. The special attraction to-night, and the one that has proved to be the greatest of all in the previous presentations, will be "Niagara on Fire." a dazzling representation of Niagara Falls by a solid mass of flame, two hundred feet long, extending the entire length of the great stage. This piece was given last Thursday night, when nearly ten thousand people cheered it. It is to be repeated to-night, although it is very expensive, for the benefit of visitors to the city who have not seen it. In addition to Niagara there will be other special designs in fireworks to-night, and the entire display will be greater than on any previous night. Other special attractions are being arranged, and altogether 'Pompeil' will well repay attendance to-night. General Manager McLean, of the street-railway company, has agreed to have as many trains of electric cars at Lincoln Park after the per-formance as will be necessary to bring all the people away comfortably and quickly, The performance will be over at 10:15 p. m., so there will be plenty of time for out-of-town people to catch the outgoing late

The special attraction for the last pre-sentation of "Pompeli," to-morrow night, will be a mammoth portrait, in fireworks, of the most beautiful woman in Indianapolis, and whose name is not yet announced and there is great curiosity about it. The fireworks display to-morrow night, in addition to this, will be the greatest of the season. Reserved seats for the spectacle can be secured at the Big Four ticket office, Washington and Meridian streets, down town, and in this way the crowding and

HON. W. D. OWEN'S ILLNESS PRE-VENTS HIS PARTICIPATION.

Chairman Gowdy's Letter to Chairman Taggart-Large Attendance at the Marion Club Reception,

The illness of Hon. W. D. Owen, Republican candidate for Secretary of State, will make it necessary to abandon the appointments he had for a series of joint debates with the Democratic candidate for the same office. Chairman Gowdy, of the Republican State central committee, yesterday received the following letter from Mr. Owen, who is at a sanitarium in Battle Creek, Mich.: "I wrote you that I would return to the campaign after a week's rest and treatment, but here more than a week, I realize to-day that I am unable to address a public meeting. "I have indulged a hope that the sacrifice of other appointments would enable me to gain the strength necessary to meet the spe-cial appointments in October, but I find myself, in bitter reluctance, compelled to ask you to cancel my engagements for the proposed joint discussions "I beg you to believe that I am deeply sensitive of my disarrangement of your plans, and of my inability to fully realize the service expected of me in the can-

"There was only one thing for me to do, and that was to accept the situation. If Mr. Owen is sick, and I have no doubt of that, of course he cannot be expected to appear in the joint debates. There are some who are saying unkind things about his retirement from the contests, but I have no reason to doubt his sincerity and unfortunate condition of health. But I said to Mr. Gowdy, in my reply, that while I regretted that anything had occurred to disarrange our plans, I hoped that when Mr. Owen is well again and returns to the stump the debates may viously contemplated."

MARION CLUB RECEPTION. Twelve Hundred People Enjoy the Club's Hospitality.

From 7:30 till 11:30 o'clock last night the Marion clubhouse on East Ohio street presented a scene of unusual activity. It was the occasion of the club's reception. Extensive preparations had been made for the entertainment of the visitors during the evening, and they proved to have been well adapted for the purpose. Everything that could be done to provide for the comfort and pleasure of the guests was done. The perfection of the arrangements was in large part due to the efforts of Lee Rothschild and President George Elliott, who devoted their attention to seeing that there were no little rough edges to mar the pleasures of the evening. The entire clubhouse was thrown open and the yard was well lighted and provided with rustic seats for those who preferred the open air. In the side lawn was hung an arc light which lighted up the whole of the yard, side and back. As the visitor approached the door he was met by Edwin S. Boyd, secretary of the club, and members of the reception committee. His name was enrolled upon a register, and then he was introduced and forthwith put upon his ease. He was greeted with that hearty cordiality that left no doubt of the welcome and the whole affair was pervaded with an air of freedom and informality that made one feel that he was in the house of his friends, and that the evening was his to do as he pleased. The reception committee included the members of the entertainment commit-tee of the club—J. J. Higgins, Lee Roths-child, W. G. Lee—and all the candidates who are members of the club. They moved about the club rooms and mingled with the crowds with an eye single to the enjoyment of their guests, and how well they succeeded was evidenced by the crowded condition of the house during the entire In the side arch, as one passes through the front parlor, was Montani's orchestra, which provided the music. Throughout the house potted plants and palms were artis-tically arranged to lend a freshness to things. In the rear room Al Moore presided over a large punch bowl, which was filled and refilled during the evening with refreshing claret punch. There was also on hand an inexhaustible supply of cigars which were passed around. In addition to the music furnished by the orchestra there was a plano recital by Bert Short and a duet by Robert Oliver and Fred Campbell. There was also a violin solo by Ed Clem, who registered from Pekin, China. The Herculean Republican Club (colored) and Fourth and Thirteenth Ward Lincoln Leagues attended in a body, and representatives were present from each of the thirty-five Republican clubs in the city. During the evening 1,200 persons visited the clubhouse. There were a large number of Republicans from out of the city present also, among them Webster S. Richie, of Muncie; Judge L. J. Monks, of Winchester; Judge Jordan, of Martinsville; Major Ross, of Connersville; A. W. Lyon, of Ligonier; W. L. Haas, of Wabash; A. J. Ralph, of Lenna; Charles Copeland, of Poseyville; James Whitaker, of Philadelphia, Ind.; W. J. Allen, of Bloomington; H. J. McMullen, of Chicago, and others.

GOV. M'KINLEY'S RECEPTION. Republican Clubs to Escort Him from the Union Station.

The general committee to arrange for the McKinley meeting next Tuesday met in the rooms of the Traveling Men's Republican Club, in the When Block, last night. General Kneffer, chairman of the committee, presided. Joseph Broyles, the representative of the Herculean Republican Club (colored), said that this club would send a large number to meet Governor McKinley at the station. The club is uniformed with dark coats, light vests and duck trousers, and makes a neat appearance when it turns out. It will probably head the procession from the station when Governor McKinley rives Monday night. The escort committee of one representative from each club in the city will form about Governor McKinley's carriage. In the carriage will be Governor and Mrs. McKinley, the Governor's private secretary and Hon. Thomas Nelson, of Terre Haute. The latter was chosen to accompany the Governor in the carriage on account of his having been for years a warm personal friend. Immediately behind the carriage will come the Columbia Club, headed by the Progress Band, the Union Veterans and the Traveling Men's Republican Club. The other clubs will be assigned places in the order of their arrival at the station, "first come, first served." From the Union Station the escort will march out Jackson place, Mc-Orea and Georgia streets to Meridian street. Arrangements will be made to light Meridian street with torches and electric lights. and for a display of Japanese lanterns at Washington street. The line of march has not been positively decided upon yet, but will probably be north on Meridian street to Monument place and around Monument place, passing the Columbia Club house, to Meridian street, north to Ohio street, east on Ohio street, passing the Marion tion will be made promptly upon the ar-rival of the train, and all clubs expecting to march in the procession must be there at that time. The colored clubs are entitled to representation on the committee that will go to Richmond to meet the Governor's party, but have not yet chosen the men to represent them. This will probably be done within a few days. On the day of the meeting incoming delegations will be met at the Union Station, and for this duty a large committee will be appointed to remain at

THE RAILROAD SANDWICH.

W. R. Hart, traveling salesman, Dayton, O., says: "Like many other traveling men, I made the acquaintance of the railroad sandwich, who afterward introduced me to 'old General Dyspepsia,' an acquaintance I was unable to shake until I met with LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS, which, I am happy to say, has put the unwelcome guest to flight. Dyspepsia and headaches are things of the past. I feel like a new man, and can eat anything."

An "Innocent" Comes to Grief. NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Charles Augen-stein, of Syracuse, N. Y., arrived by the Red Star steamship Westernland. He wore an open-front shirt and told the customs officers he had nothing to declare in the shape of dutiable property. The keen eyes of an inspector noticed a gold watch peeping out from Augenstein's shirt front. Further search showed false pockets in Augenstein's underwear. Here three gold watches, gold brooches, earrings and chains were tucked away. The unfortunate declared he thought the jewelry must have been in his underwear when he bought it. "Well, you are nothing out," said the inspector, as he pocketed the jewelry.
